Subject: Determination of “Widely Attended Event” for September 13-14 Conference

The conference “Connecting Grassroots to Government for Disaster Management,” which will be held at the Woodrow Wilson Center on September 13-14, 2012, organized by the Commons Lab of the Science and Technology Innovation Program, meets the definition of a “Widely Attended Event.” It will involve well over sixty people drawn from a broad cross-section of stakeholders in the issues addressed, including those from government, the private sector, academic institutions, and the scientific community. The invitation has been publicly extended to all concerned with these issues and will be webcast live to the public in general.
