

Presidential Candidates' Proposals on Public Security

Jair Bolsonaro (PSL)

Fernando Haddad (PT)

Disarmament Statute

- Reform the Disarmament Statute to facilitate access to guns, supporting the widespread possession of fire arms as a deterrent to violence
- Change penal code to guarantee additional legal protections for those who kill in self-defense

- Reinforce the tracking of weapons and ammunition and improve gun control policy
- Use intelligence to retrieve weapons circulating in national and international arms trafficking

Policing

- Invest in equipment, technology, intelligence, and investigative capacity of police forces
- Ensure additional legal protections for policemen who kill in the line of duty
- Favors strict policing

- Review the law that created the Single Public Security System (SUSP) to then implement it, redistributing tasks between municipal, state, and federal governments
- Create a unit within the federal police to fight organized crime

Incarceration

- Reduce the adult prison age to 16
- Advocates for strict prison practices, such as prohibiting temporary releases
- Introduce harsh penalties for violent crimes as a deterrent to violence, such as voluntary chemical castration in exchange for a reduced sentence

- Tackle the issue of mass incarceration, particularly of black and marginalized youth, by providing resources to reduce pressures on the federal prison system

Other

- Typify invasions of rural and urban properties in Brazilian territory as terrorism

- Generate work and income for poor young people to prevent their involvement in violence and illegal markets
- Invest in health and education sectors as a prevention strategy for drug-use
- Invest in the armed forces
- Create a National Homicide Reduction Plan

Please note: The information is not all-inclusive and serves as a general summary: candidates may have additional policy proposals not included in the table. The following information is drawn primarily from candidates' official platforms, the Roda Viva preliminary interviews, and public statements.