

Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars
Mexico Institute

The Mexico Institute at the Woodrow Wilson Center is pleased to invite you to a conversation in the series Dialogues with Mexico/Diálogos con México, featuring:

Carmen Aristegui

Radio Noticias MVS, morning host, and "Aristegui" CNN talk show, anchor on

“Mexico’s Democratic Transition”

.....
Wednesday, January 20th, 2010

12:00-1:30 p.m.

5th Floor Conference Room

Woodrow Wilson Center

1300 Pennsylvania Ave. NW
.....

CARMEN ARISTEGUI is one of Mexico's most influential journalists. She has been an anchor, a commentator and a reporter for some of Mexico's leading radio and television programs. She is currently the morning host of "Radio Noticias MVS," one of Mexico's highest ranked radio programs, and anchor of "Aristegui," CNN en Español's talk show featuring in-depth conversations with Mexican leaders. In the past, she has hosted shows such as MVS's "Para Empezar," W Radio's "Hoy por Hoy" and Grupo Imagen's "Imagen Informativa." She is a regular op-ed columnist for Reforma. She has won Mexico's Premio Nacional de Periodismo several times and was awarded the Maria Moors Cabot Prize by Columbia University in 2008. Aristegui studied communications at UNAM.

She will discuss her new book, Transición, a collection of interviews with major players in Mexico's transition to democracy, including former presidents, intellectuals, and government and civil society leaders.

Please RSVP to mexico@wilsoncenter.org.

Presentation will be in Spanish; translation will be available.

The event will be webcast live on wilsoncenter.org/mexico.

For up-to-date information on Mexican politics and other news, visit wilsoncenter.org/mexicoportal.