

Monday, October 29, 2007

7:30 am – 5:00 pm

Ottawa Congress Centre

55 Colonel By Drive

Ottawa, Ontario

Canada as the “Emerging Energy Superpower”: Testing the Case

At the summer 2006 G8 Summit, Prime Minister Stephen Harper declared that Canada is becoming an “energy superpower”. This year’s conference on Canadian Foreign Policy will examine that proposition. Is it True? If so, what are the implications and ramifications of that development? What energy policies will best serve Canada’s international presence? The results of a national public opinion poll on how Canadians see the use of their energy resources will also be released.

Speakers

~
Chairs

David Biette
Bob Booth
Mark Entwistle

Charles Pentland
David Pratt
Stéphane Roussel

Keynote

~
Hon. Jim Prentice Minister of Industry

Panelists

Samantha Arnold
Mike Cleland
Annette Hester
Rob Huebert
Felix Kwamena
Frédéric Lasserre

Albert Legault
Matthew McManus
Dave Pumphrey
Dave Redman
Debra Yedlin
James Young

Keynote

~
Hon. Gary Lunn
Minister of Natural Resources

Themes

~
National Poll Results
Life as an Energy Superpower
Implications for Canada-US Relations
Critical Energy Infrastructure Protection Energy, Environment and the Arctic

To register, visit the conference website:

www.peopleware.net/1540

Partners:

Canadian Centre for Energy Information
Centre canadien d'information sur l'énergie

Canadian Defence
& Foreign Affairs Institute

CEPES
CENTRE D'ÉTUDES DES POLITIQUES
ÉTRANGÈRES ET DE SÉCURITÉ

centre for security and defence studies
carleton university

UNIVERSITÉ LAVAL

Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars
Canada Institute