

Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars
Mexico Institute

Please join the Mexico Institute for a private screening of

Los que se quedan

Mexico is now the world's largest exporter of its people, with up to half a million people each year crossing the U.S.-Mexico border in search of work. The toll this explosion in emigration has taken is particularly evident in central Mexico and in southern states like Chiapas and Yucatán, where entire cities and towns have been depleted. Half of the population of the state of Zacatecas, for example, now lives in the United States.

What happens to the families that stay behind?

The Mexico Institute is proud to present Los que se quedan (Those That Remain), a film about the families that are left behind when their loved ones leave home in search of a better life abroad.

Tuesday, November 18th, 2008
6th Floor Flom Auditorium
Woodrow Wilson Center
1300 Pennsylvania Ave. N.W.
Washington, D.C.

Film begins at 5:00pm
Reception to follow with film directors
JUAN CARLOS RULFO and CARLOS HAGERMAN
With Remarks by Former Gov. LÁZARO CÁRDENAS BATEL

NO MEDIA PLEASE. THIS IS AN OFF THE RECORD EVENT.

*Film is in Spanish with English subtitles. For more information, please visit wilsoncenter.org/mexico.
Please RSVP to Katie Putnam at mexico@wilsoncenter.org or (202) 691-4399.*