

Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars

The Brazil Institute at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars

Invites you to a discussion on

Public Opinion in Brazil: Findings from the Pew Research Center's Global Attitudes Project

Wednesday, September 22, 2010 – 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.
Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars
6th Floor Flom Auditorium

RSVP: james.hodges@wilsoncenter.org

Speakers: Richard Wike, Associate Director, Pew Global Attitudes Project; Juliana Menasce Horowitz, Senior Researcher, Pew Global Attitudes Project
Commentators: Paulo Sotero, Director, Brazil Institute, Woodrow Wilson Center;
Ricardo Mendes, Executive Director, Prospectiva Consulting

As eight years of Lula's presidency comes to a close, how do Brazilians evaluate their country? And how do they perceive Brazil's place in the world? Published on the eve of the October 3 presidential and general elections, a new report from the Pew Research Center's Global Attitudes Project examines these and other issues, including: views of Lula, national conditions, the economy, the environment, international relations as well as key institutions, from the military to the media. Based on a survey conducted in the spring of 2010, the report also reveals perspectives on gender and examines Brazilian views on having a woman as president.