CEDAW Committee
General Recommendation 37

States parties should:

- Ensure that migration and development policies are gender responsive and that they include sound disaster risk considerations and recognize disasters and climate change as important push factors for internal displacement and migration.

- Facilitate the participation of migrant women, including those who have been displaced, in the development, implementation and monitoring of policies designed to protect and promote their human rights at all phases of migration.

- Ensure a gender balance among border police, military personnel and government officials who receive migrants and train these groups on the gender-specific harms that women migrants may face, including the increased risk of violence.

- Integrate human mobility-related considerations into disaster risk reduction and climate change policies, taking into account the specific rights and needs of women and girls.
UN Women’s Programmes

- Leadership, Empowerment, Access & Protection in Crisis Response (LEAP) programme

  Focusing on women’s empowerment and resilience, UN Women:

  - Coordinates and provides technical support for gender-inclusive humanitarian response
  - Enhances girls’ and women’s participation and leadership, and building social cohesion
  - Provides protection services (i.e. legal aid, referral services, psycho-social assistance and SGBV awareness-raising and prevention)
  - Provides livelihood assistance (i.e. employment (e.g. Cash for Work), agricultural production and entrepreneurship opportunities)
  - Organizes skills training for livelihood
The Multisectoral Response Project to Women Refugees and Displaced in the DRC supported Maheshe’s leadership. She now owns a piece of land and a small business of basket-making. Her story amplifies the need of Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 1 on ending poverty, which calls for land ownership and control, as well as SDG 8 which promotes entrepreneurship.
“We had fled to the camp to escape the conflict in our villages in the highlands of Masisi in the northern part of the country, where rebels were active.

My life changed when Dynamique Paysanne Femmes (DPF), a partner organization of UN Women, offered me a small plot of land, where I sowed some corn. After the first harvest, I made USD 150! With this money, I put my daughters back to school and bought more raw materials to weave baskets.

The organization also helped me get a USD 90 loan to expand my basket business, and gave me a bigger plot of land to cultivate, seeing how well I was doing. Today, I have just packaged 500 kilos of corn; it will sell for USD 300!

Now I can provide two full meals a day for my family, which used to be impossible before. I can even afford to pay school fees for all my children.”
UN Women’s Programmes

- Gender Inequality of Risk and Promoting Community Resilience to Natural Hazards in a Changing Climate (GIR)
  - Programme with IFRC and UNISDR, UN Women in support of a gender-responsive Sendai Framework Implementation

Key outcomes:

- understanding and assessing the gender dimensions of risk;
- ensuring that DRR policy and risk governance are gender responsive and well resources;
- increasing women’s capacity to prevent, prepare for and recover from disasters; and
- strengthening women’s participation and leadership in DRR.
