A Year of Insight and Impact

Annual Report | FY 2020

INTERACTIVE REPORT
Wilson Center Leadership

“It’s obvious the world was a much different place in 2020 than it was in 2019, but then so is the Wilson Center. In spite of these challenges, we managed to stay on top of the headlines and on top of the trendlines. Our ability to adapt to unprecedented circumstances and our seamless shift to virtual operations allowed us to reach bigger audiences than ever.”

Jane Harman
Director, President, and CEO
“In today’s age of polarization, as we fight a global pandemic, I’m of the opinion that Wilson Center’s independent research and commitment to non-partisanship has never been more important.”

Bill Haslam
Chairman of the Board
Former Governor of Tennessee
The Wilson Center is a public-private partnership with a broad-based and committed community of sponsors dedicated to our mission.

Our goal is to work individually with partners and donors to provide specific benefits to meet their investment needs. This work is grounded in the programs and initiatives at the Wilson Center.

Our partners have questions. We have the ability to research and present independent and cohesive answers. We analyze, inform and present our partners with cohesive information that far exceeds their investment.

The Wilson Center’s reputation and inspiration resides in the dedicated work of our scholars and the integrity of our scholarship.

For more information on becoming a Wilson Center sponsor, please contact us at (202) 691-4171.
Woodrow Wilson Awards Gala
Honoring U.S. Treasury Secretary Steven T. Mnuchin, President of the European Central Bank Christine M. Lagarde, Senator Mike Crapo (R-ID) and Congressman Gregory Meeks (D-NY)

“Thank you for your continued commitment and response to improve relations throughout the world.”

The Honorable Steven T. Mnuchin, U.S. Treasury Secretary
Spotlights

In our deeply-interconnected world, great ideas cannot reside in silos. The Center’s continuing integration of our programs across regions gives maximum impact to its experts and extends its capacity to bring together stakeholders across disciplines. These efforts are centered on four essential clusters:

- The Arctic: Navigating the Emerging Landscape
- Rule of Law and the Future of Democracy
- Brave New Digital World
- Great Powers Competition

The Brazil Institute and the Latin American Program developed programing and research on the region’s gender-based violence (GBV) epidemic.

The Mexico Institute and the Science and Technology Innovation Program created new digital platforms to educate lawmakers and citizens on 5G’s impact.

The Polar Institute created new programs to capitalize on the Guggenheim Partners’ transfer of the Arctic Infrastructure Inventory to the Wilson Center.

The Asia Program, the Kennan Institute, and the Kissinger Institute on China and the U.S. collaborated on events and publications that explore “Geo-Strategic Competition.”
I. INTRODUCTION

In reports of increasing tensions, bellicose rhetoric, and renewed “Great Power Competition” in the Arctic Ocean, analysts and the media at large too often mistakenly identify territorial disputes as a source of those tensions. In fact, there are no meaningful territorial disputes in the Arctic Ocean. The process for determining the outer limits of continental shelf entitlements—known colloquially as the outer or extended continental shelf (ECS)—is peaceful, rules-based and cooperative in the Arctic.

In 2020, the five States with continental shelf in the Central Arctic Ocean—Canada, Denmark in respect of Greenland, Norway, Russia, and the United States—continue their longstanding collaboration to determine the extent of their respective continental shelves through established scientific, diplomatic, and legal processes. The common rules and information-sharing established pursuant to Article 76 of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (the “LOS Convention”) are described in Part II of this article. The States’ collective adherence to these robust and respected processes epitomizes successful international cooperation.

Arctic Overlaps: The Surprising Story of Continental Shelf Diplomacy

Betsy Baker, Global Fellow, Polar Institute

The Canadian Coast Guard Ship Louis S. St-Laurent makes an approach to the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Healy in the Arctic Ocean on Sept. 5, 2009. The two ships are taking part in a multi-year, multi-agency Arctic survey that will help define the Arctic continental shelf. The author was a member of the HEALY-0905 scientific party. Photo courtesy of Patrick Kelley, U.S. Coast Guard at www.flickr.com

America, Europe, and Asia allows it to mine deep knowledge on key Arctic players and offer purposeful opportunities for interdisciplinary approaches to the new “global Arctic.”

- Arctic Infrastructure Inventory (AII), which tracks more than 8,000 infrastructure projects in the region
- Arctic Security Dialogues
- Polar Perspectives series
Acclaimed regional programs are at the center of the Wilson Center’s influence and effectiveness – and wide-ranging work on rule-of-law is a key element in their work. The Center has embarked on efforts to bring rigorous analysis of governance, public accountability, human rights, judicial independence, and anti-corruption efforts into confluence, and expand its vision to encompass thematic and cross-regional diversity. An essential element in this task is convening stakeholders from government, industry, academia and NGOs to identify innovative strategies to surmount obstacles to reform.

Gender-based violence (GBV) is a particular focus. GBV affects one in three women worldwide, and it has been exacerbated by the global COVID-19 pandemic. One prominent Center initiative was a series of events, publications, and podcasts tied to the “United Nations’ 16 Days of Activism” to combat GBV through dialogue and solutions, including a dedicated microsite that aggregates relevant content from across the Center.
SPOTLIGHT: BRAVE NEW DIGITAL WORLD

Technology is an indispensable component in national security, trade and commerce. Yet it also reveals the world’s interconnected nature, as essential elements of sovereignty are negotiated through networks.

The Wilson Center’s programs are also networked, shedding new light on how technology undergirds and reshapes global geopolitics. What tech battles are being waged in plain sight – or under the radar? What significant risks accompany startling advances in cyber and AI? How will governments and industry tackle ethical challenges raised by new technology?

The global rollout of 5G raises significant national security, intellectual property, and regulatory issues, both in North America and throughout the world. The 5G Beyond Borders project explores how the U.S., Canada, and Mexico can maximize 5G’s benefits through informed policy solutions.

News and information also have been transformed by technology. Yet the specter of making the internet secure and battling organized disinformation campaigns looms large. The Center’s efforts to survey the cybersecurity landscape and examine the challenges posed by disinformation – and articulate ways to fight it – are found in a wide array of events, publications, podcasts, and Congressional testimony.

Learn More
SPOTLIGHT: GREAT POWERS COMPETITION

The post-1945 world order has eroded. But competition and cooperation between the United States and its Great Powers rivals – China and Russia – are proving more essential than ever.

Great Powers are competing for geopolitical influence in new ways, seeking to shape security architectures, as well as new structures in technology and trade. These frictions play out not only in Beijing, Washington, and Moscow, but in a vast array of global and regional stages — as well as outer space and cyberspace.

Yet these same powers must often collaborate on issues for which they remain essential players, including public health and arms control.

The Center’s spotlight on Great Powers offers not only compelling and timely analysis of recent trends in these key relationships, but also the historical context and regional perspectives that policymakers require to understand their depth and scope.
“I want to thank Jane. I want to thank the Wilson Center for one, your friendship, and for having me back on a variety of occasions to talk about critically important issues.”

Senator Mark Warner (D-VA)
Gathering Voices and Visions

A speech given at the Wilson Center by Ambassador Alice Wells, Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for South and Central Asia, that sharply critiqued the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor, made headlines throughout Asia.

The Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Dinner celebrated the Kennan Institute’s 45th Anniversary with tributes to the institute’s three founders: George F. Kennan, James H. Billington, and S. Frederick Starr.

Ajit Pai, Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, spoke at a Director’s Forum on maintaining a U.S. edge in 5G technology and security protocols in an increasingly intercon- nected world.

Director Harman led a conversation with women leaders and young entrepreneurs in Amman, Jordan, on the Center’s new report: Ready for Work. The new study draws upon primary research on Jordan, Tunisia and Oman to highlight challenges in workforce development for women in the Middle East and the role of entrepreneurship and innovation in creating expanded opportunities.
Senator Lisa Murkowski (R-AK) and Senator Dan Sullivan (R-AK) joined a conversation with Polar Institute Director Mike Sfraga regarding the Air Force’s Arctic Strategy and its implications for the United States, the North American Arctic, and the unique role Alaska plays in our new, global Arctic.

As online disinformation becomes commonplace, and legislators seek policy solutions, the Wilson Center’s “Defeating Disinformation” series featured a keynote speech from Senator Mark Warner (D-VA) on efforts to grapple with the issue in the U.S. Congress.

The Latin American Program hosted an exclusive conversation with President Lenín Moreno of Ecuador, who spoke in depth about his nation’s response to the COVID-19 pandemic. It was the first in a continuing series of “Crisis Conversations” that the program will convene with leaders in the region.

Senator Lisa Murkowski (R-AK) and Senator Dan Sullivan (R-AK) joined a conversation with Polar Institute Director Mike Sfraga regarding the Air Force’s Arctic Strategy and its implications for the United States, the North American Arctic, and the unique role Alaska plays in our new, global Arctic.
Analysis Across Time Zones

Our signature Ground Truth Briefing (GTB) audio series responds to developing news in real time with the help of experts on the ground around the globe.

New Ground Truth Briefings this year

Listen here
NOW HEAR THIS

Need to Know is a podcast produced by the Wilson Center’s Office of Congressional Relations. Each episode taps in-the-know experts for a non-partisan guide to global hotspots, players, and topics, including U.S.-China relations, disinformation and COVID-19.
Training the Next Generation of Policy Staff

Congressional Foreign Policy Fellowships, Cybersecurity, and Artificial Intelligence Labs are six-week seminars combining expert discussion, hands-on exercises, and field trips designed to equip the next generation of Hill policy staff with the very latest knowledge.

“During my job search on the Hill, I kept hearing other staffers rave about the Wilson Center Foreign Policy Fellowship. Once I came to the Hill and went through the program it exceeded all of my expectations. This is a rigorous and highly relevant experience that was well worth the wait.”

– Will Emmons, House Judiciary Committee

STAFF DELEGATION TO MEXICO CITY, CIUDAD JUAREZ & EL PASO, TEXAS

The delegation met with Border Patrol and Customs Border Protection on the U.S.-Mexico border. In Ciudad Juarez, staffers met with the U.S. Consulate to discuss immigration, security, manufacturing and trade, and criminal violence and drug trafficking.

Learn more about the Foreign Policy Fellowship Program

Watch an exciting overview of the trip
150 Fellows Yearly

40+ Languages Spoken

100+ Countries Represented
The Wilson Quarterly

Featuring original reporting, expert voices, and interactive multimedia elements, the Center’s award-winning digital magazine, The Wilson Quarterly, has earned widespread praise.

“In 2020, the WQ explored essential issues — global protest, regulatory reach, the politics of history — and offered a definitive look at Korea 70 years after the Cold War conflict.”

Richard Byrne, Editor
Books @ Wilson

Based on their work at the Wilson Center, fellows published seminal books that expand public understanding of history and shed light on issues critical to international security. “Books @ Wilson” titles were crucial to the Center’s work in bridging scholarship and public policy.

Browse our books
21st Century Diplomacy: Foreign Policy is Climate Policy, in collaboration with adelphi and the German Federal Foreign Office:

- A comprehensive report on the interconnected nature of politics, power, and possible solutions to ecological crises.
- A series of videos featuring key players at the intersection of diplomacy and climate science.
- Events that elicited public discussion of the stakes of climate change for governments and citizens.
- A new website that collects and curates all of the initiative’s activities.

Critical Coverage

With cross-cutting studies, influential publications, and experts and fellows tracking nearly every element of international security, the Wilson Center is a repository of insight and an incubator for ideas.
COVID-19: The Wilson Center Pursues a Global View of the Pandemic

- Published a mid-year issue of On the Horizon in June 2020 to track international impact.
- Created a stream of informed analysis for stakeholders via publications, podcasts and videos.
- Used regional program strength to convene events that highlighted local voices on politics and public health.
- Created a website capturing the wide range of Wilson Center initiatives in understanding the pandemic’s effects.

The Wilson Center’s commemoration of the 70th anniversary of the Korean War

- A special expanded issue of The Wilson Quarterly examining this key international Cold War conflict
- Essays on archival materials held by the Center’s History and Public Policy program
- An exclusive live event with Lt. Col. Sean Morrow, Commander of the UN Command Security Battalion in the DMZ
Jane Harman testified in front of the Federal Communications Commission as part of the Forum on 5G Open Radio Access Networks. This forward-looking forum featured experts at the vanguard of the development and deployment of 5G network architecture.

Disinformation Fellow Nina Jankowicz testified before the House in a virtual unclassified hearing on conspiracy theories and misinformation narratives online. She discussed three trends that exemplify the modern information space: 1) increased use of information laundering to deliver foreign disinformation; 2) conspiracy convergence; 3) disinformation often targets women and minorities.

Abraham Denmark, Director of the Wilson Center’s Asia Program and former Assistant Secretary of Defense for East Asia, was a witness at the Full Committee Hearing “The Department of Defense’s Role in Long-Term Major State Competition” on February 11, 2020.

Jane Harman testified in front of the Federal Communications Commission as part of the Forum on 5G Open Radio Access Networks. This forward-looking forum featured experts at the vanguard of the development and deployment of 5G network architecture.

Tom Kellermann, Global Fellow with the Digital Futures Project, Head Of Cybersecurity Strategy for VMware, and member, Cyber Investigations Advisory Board for the United States Secret Service, was a witness at the hearing “Cybercriminals and Fraudsters: How Bad Actors Are Exploiting the Financial System During the COVID-19 Pandemic.”
“I truly value that an organization such as the one you lead is concerned about and analyzes social and economic issues of global importance. Thank you very much for inviting me to share Ecuador’s experience in confronting this deadly pandemic.”

President Lenín Moreno, Ecuador
Global Action Across Programs

Africa Program events included hosting former Nigerian President Olusegun Obasanjo to speak about his nation’s management of diversity and co-hosting Africa Symposium 2020: Advancing Africa’s Peace, Security, and Governance. The program also brought recipients of the Southern Voices Network for Peacebuilding (SVNP) scholarship to the Center, and launched the Stafford Capacity Building Internship Program.

The Asia Program organized a delegation visit to Taiwan and hosted a speech by Ambassador Alice Wells offering a U.S. diplomat’s first detailed public remarks on China’s Belt and Road Initiative. Key publications analyzed notable anniversaries for U.S. military involvement in the region in WWII and in Korea, and Asia Program Director Abraham Denmark published a new book: U.S. Strategy in the Asian Century: Empowering Allies and Partners.

The Canada Institute tracked Canada’s policy responses to COVID-19, including economic stimulus and the imposition of joint U.S.-Canadian border restrictions. And as the two countries begin to implement the USMCA, Members of Congress and border state governors and legislators connected at the Wilson Center to explore ways to responsibly phase out restrictions on cross border travel and economic activity.

The Kissinger Institute co-hosted thirteen dialogues beginning in April 2020 on U.S.-China Relations in the Age of COVID-19. These regular convenings gave 30 American and Chinese opinion leaders a powerful platform for frank discussions of strategic, economic, tech, public health, and soft power issues—despite the isolation brought about by the pandemic and worsening bilateral relations.
Foreign policy responses to climate change have mainly focused on the security implications, international treaties, and renewable energy. However, the foreign policy implications are much broader. Because foreign policy is climate policy, the Environmental Change & Security Program launched 21st Century Diplomacy to provide fresh input to help stakeholders prepare for a new global context amid a changing climate.

The China Environment Forum and the Serious Games Initiative are leading work to protect our oceans. CEF is amplifying global solutions in the policy, industry, and community sectors that will stem ocean plastic leakages. This research is feeding the development of the Plastic Pipeline, an educational video game.

The Global Europe Program addressed vital issues affecting the continent, U.S.-European relations, and Europe’s global ties. Our programming examined how COVID-19 ravaged Europe with unprecedented ferocity and scale. And the 75th anniversary of the end of World War II, and the 30th anniversary of the Cold War’s end offered opportunities to explore prospects for a “whole and free” Europe amidst current challenges.
In our Understanding Russia Briefing Series, policymakers at the Department of State, USAID, and other government agencies participated in roundtable conversations with Kennan Institute experts focusing on topics including sanctions, corruption, Russian youth, and Sino-Russian relations. The Institute’s Global Perspectives Series widened the scope to bring Wilson Center regional expertise to explore Russia’s relations with countries including Afghanistan, Japan, and Egypt.

The COVID-19 pandemic’s devastating impact on Latin America left the region desperate for aid, prompting China to organize massive shipments of emergency medical supplies that amplified its influence. The Latin American Program recognized the geopolitical significance of “medical diplomacy,” and launched an interactive map cataloguing COVID-19 assistance, a series of articles on the implications of the Chinese and U.S. responses to Latin America’s coronavirus struggles, and a webinar on Taiwan’s contributions.

The Maternal Health Initiative explored COVID-19’s devastating effects on women, girls, and people of color in high-level symposiums, including a conversation with Representative Alma Adams (D-NC). Since 2020 was also the International Year of the Nurse and Midwife, MHI also focused on front-line health workers, specifically midwives and nurses, as they lead the fight against COVID-19.
The Mexico Institute has engaged government officials, businesses, experts, and civil society in both countries through our monthly USMCA dialogues, examining the implementation of the trade agreement in North America. The Institute explored the health and economic impacts of COVID-19 in Mexico and Latin America, as well as strong cross-program collaboration on trade, the 5G rollout, and gender-based violence.

With Earthday.org and the State Department, STIP built the Citizen Science Cloud as the first ever global resource for citizen science data sharing to support research and policy. The project’s app, EarthChallenge2020, has been downloaded over 30,000 times worldwide. Georgetown University will use it in their Freshman Year Experience program.

The Polar Institute’s 25 events in 2020 included a forum about the impacts of COVID-19 in the Arctic. The Institute launched the Arctic Infrastructure Inventory, a public dataset with an inventory of 8,000+ infrastructure assets in the Arctic, as well as new series of events (Arctic Security Dialogues) and publications (Polar Perspectives).

In more than 25 events, the Middle East Program addressed protests, political and socioeconomic instability across the MENA region, and produced 80 articles and blogs featuring activists and analysts. The program also offered analysis of fundamental changes to U.S. Mideast policy, and the shifting alliances created by normalization agreements made by several Arab countries with Israel.

Is it time for a paradigm shift in how Antarctic tourism is controlled?

Tourists visiting Antarctica now have a wide variety of activities to choose from, including kayaking, wildlife watching, climbing, and camping overnight on shore. All photos courtesy of author. © Peter Carey

POLAR PERSPECTIVES
No. 1  l  July 2020

Now the polar bear population appears to have stabilized, researchers have found that the increasing rates of deadly attacks on humans by the animals are low. The attacks are often a result of the bears’ voracious appetite, as they seek to replenish their depleted fat reserves in the Arctic. The current study examined the neuroscience of the attack behavior and concluded that the polar bears are driven by their need to eat, not by any innate aggression.

Until the recent coronavirus pandemic upended the world’s economy and gutted global tourism, Antarctica was an increasingly popular tourist destination. A record high of about 74,000 people made the expensive trip there in the most recent summer season (November 2019-March 2020). This is a 32 percent increase from the previous record high, set just one year before (IAATO 2020). The vast majority of these visitors went only to the northern end of the Antarctic Peninsula, traveling by cruise ship from ports in South America. With the big increase in visitor numbers has come increasing concern for the environmental impacts of these tours. This concern is not new — calls for tighter controls on Antarctic tourism have been made whenever visitor numbers took a big step up (e.g., Enzenbacher 1992, Liggett et al. 2011, Jabour 2013). In response to these calls, the largely self-managed industry has adjusted how it operates in the Far South. This has helped protect the environment, while allowing the industry to remain in charge of its own commercial destiny. However, this latest huge increase feels different, as if this step-up in numbers is finally so big that it simply cannot be accommodated by adjusting ship schedules and juggling itineraries. With the pandemic forcing a pause in the upward trajectory of visitor numbers, is it time for a paradigm shift in how Antarctic tourism is controlled?

Peter W. Carey, Polar Institute Global Fellow

In more than 25 events, the Middle East Program addressed protests, political and socioeconomic instability across the MENA region, and produced 80 articles and blogs featuring activists and analysts. The program also offered analysis of fundamental changes to U.S. Mideast policy, and the shifting alliances created by normalization agreements made by several Arab countries with Israel.
Informing the Public

The Wilson Center kicked off a new initiative with our media breakfasts that offer journalists essential expertise from scholars working on key regions and crucial issues, including an October session on disinformation, and a November gathering that examined the interplay of politics and reform in Ukraine.

Schedule an interview with one of our experts
Partnerships

The annual State of the Union reception for a bipartisan group of members of Congress in the Library of Congress Member’s Room was a chance for Wilson Center and Library experts to share expertise.

Earth Challenge 2020 – a collaboration with the Earth Day Network and the US Department of State’s Eco-Capitals Forum – brought research and technology together with an app that captured vital citizen scientist data.

A private screening of the film, Incitement, hosted with the Motion Picture Association, featured a panel discussion with the film’s creative team and foreign policy experts.

A day-long gathering, co-hosted with the Nixon Foundation, convened leading experts to assess U.S.-China relations.
External Relations and Outreach

Facebook minutes viewed

39%

YouTube video minutes watched

58%

Instagram followers

232%

LinkedIn followers

425%
The debut of a newly redesigned WilsonCenter.org on February 3, 2020 made it easier than ever to tap into Wilson Center events, analysis, and experts.

Since the launch in early February, page views are up 65% and most significantly, visitors are up 222%!

2,172
Events and meetings

100+
Books and briefs designed and published

4,678,668
Website User Sessions

77%
increase in user sessions since the new website launch

External Relations hired a Digital Marketing Specialist this year to help craft and execute a digital marketing strategy for the Wilson Center.

This year was the first for our Frederic V. Malek Internship Program. Our first intern, Khary Armster, is a recent graduate from Howard University.
The Newly Designed Wilson Center NOW

Our flagship video program continues to showcase the work of Wilson Center experts and fellows through in-depth, non-partisan, and fact-based discussions of critical global issues and topics. And the program underwent a facelift this year, introducing a fresh new graphics package at a time when digital delivery of content became an even larger part of the Center’s outreach. Selected highlights include a major new book on Henry Kissinger written by Wilson alumnus Thomas Schwartz and an Indo-Pacific primer for the Biden administration from the Asia Program’s Abe Denmark, Shihoko Goto, and Michael Kugelman.
Wilson Ranked Top in the World

The Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars is ranked as one of the top 10 think tanks in the world and is once again listed as number one in regional studies according to the 2019 University of Pennsylvania Global Go To Think Tank Rankings Survey.

“Washington is in the throes of the most hyper-partisan atmosphere of my lifetime. That’s not what we do here... It is enormously gratifying that our peers recognize our value across the board.”

- Jane Harman, Director, President, and CEO
Diversity and Inclusion Council

Mission Statement

The Diversity and Inclusion (D&I) Council was established in July 2020 to serve as the primary body responsible for advising the Director and the rest of the Executive Team on all subjects related to Diversity and Inclusion.

Message from the Director, President, and CEO

“We at the Wilson Center are committed to ensuring all employees feel valued, empowered, and have an equal opportunity to perform at their best.”

—Congresswoman Jane Harman, President, Director, and CEO, The Wilson Center

Guiding Principles and Initiatives

The Diversity and Inclusion Council works to institutionalize diversity, equity, and inclusion across all functions at the Center. To achieve this mission, the Council has prioritized four core initiatives that will:

1. Promote, achieve, and sustain a diverse workforce.
2. Promote an equitable, inclusive, and respectful work environment.
3. Support research and programming on diversity and inclusion.
4. Imbed diversity, equity, and inclusion into all Wilson Center policies, practices, and procedures.
Council Leadership

Co-Chairs:

Abraham M. Denmark
Director, Asia Program

Shahrazad Hired
Program Assistant, Africa Program

Natasha M. Jacome
Deputy Chief Operating Officer

Vickki G. Johnson
Director, Human Resources

Key Accomplishments and Impact

• Created a Diversity and Inclusion Council charter and strategy;
• Designed and distributed an employee engagement survey to staff members;
• Developed a DEI report based on staff data from the employee survey;
• Established council committees and ERGs;
• Created a heritage calendar for programmatic activities.
Alumni Relations

The Wilson Center launched a formal Alumni Program for more than 4,500 alumni spanning our 50-year history of hosting scholars.

Alumni Relations holds salons and professional development sessions in addition to maintaining a closed LinkedIn Group so Alumni can engage with each other.
Financial Summary

Fiscal year ending September 30, 2019

The Wilson Center’s funding matrix underwriting operations includes the direct federal appropriation; donor contributions; grants and contracts from private and governmental entities; and investment income. These resources fund mission-related activities including policy research, constructive debate, and dissemination of actionable ideas to key stakeholders and audiences, including policymakers and the general public.

The Wilson Center’s most valuable asset is its human capital. Staff professionals and fellows, both residential and non-residential, combine to offer expertise and insights that have lasting effect. This leads directly to the overall institutional performance. Financial results from operations remain strong, continuing a legacy of sound stewardship and the leadership’s commitment to excellent resource management.

Audited financial statements for the prior fiscal year are completed on or after March 31st each year. The Wilson Center’s audited financial statements are available at https://www.wilsoncenter.org/990-formsannual-reports.
The Wilson Center, chartered by Congress as the official memorial to President Woodrow Wilson, is the nation’s key non-partisan policy forum. Tackling global issues through independent research and open dialogue, the Center informs actionable ideas for Congress, the Administration, and the international policy community.

Wilson Center Leadership

Jane Harman, Director, President, and CEO

Board of Trustees

Chairman

Bill Haslam, Chair, Former Governor of Tennessee (July 2020-July 2024)

Scott Walker, Chair, Former Governor of Wisconsin (July 2019-July 2020)

Vice Chair

Drew Maloney, President and CEO, American Investment Council

Private Citizen Members

Peter J. Beshar, Executive Vice President & General Counsel, Marsh & McLennan Companies, Inc.

Thelma Duggin, President, AnBryce Foundation

Barry S. Jackson, Managing Director, The Lindsey Group and Strategic Advisor, Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck

David Jacobson, Former U.S. Ambassador to Canada and Vice Chair, BMO Financial Group

Nathalie Rayes, Vice President of Public Affairs, Grupo Salinas

Earl W. Stafford, Chief Executive Officer, The Wentworth Group, LLC

Louis Susman, Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Kingdom and Senior Advisor, Perella Weinberg Partners

Public Members

Alex Azar, Secretary, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services

Elisabeth DeVos, Secretary, U.S. Department of Education

David Ferriero, Archivist of the United States

Carla D. Hayden, Librarian of Congress

Jon Parrish Peede, Chairman, National Endowment for the Humanities

Michael Pompeo, Secretary, U.S. Department of State

Lonnie G. Bunch III, Secretary, Smithsonian Institution